

The Apache lived in the southwestern part of the United States and the northern part of Mexico.

*Many Apache lived in teepees covered
with animal hides.*

Some Apache lived in
wickiups made from tall, young trees driven into the ground, bent over, and tied together at the top.

*They were covered with mats made from types
of grass or bark.*

Apache men were skilled hunters and . . .

trained warriors.

Apache warriors used
various weapons for war.
Sometimes, bows and arrows had beautiful
cases and quivers.

The sting-shot club was a very dangerous type of ball club with a covered stone ball
attached to the end.

Chiefs from some Apache tribes wore headdresses, but they were not
common with all Apache.